About this Course

This program equips you to connect with and support vulnerable individuals ranging in age from 10-25, offering them a lifeline during crucial life stages. Delve deep into understanding the unique needs of young people, focusing on holistic approaches that cater to their social, behavioural, health, and overall well-being. As you harness the skills from this qualification, you'll be poised to design and lead community-based projects that not only address immediate needs but also foster self-esteem and confidence. Help young individuals navigate personal relationships, embrace learning, and discover new talents, ensuring they step into the world with resilience and purpose.

With a growing commitment and increased resources from the Australian Government in this sector, the demand for skilled youth work professionals is expected to triple over the next decade. Seize this opportunity to join a thriving industry and contribute to the betterment of young lives.

Our highly skilled trainers have hands on industry experience which allows students to be immersed in practical youth work from day one.

This direct link to the community services sector not only enriches the learning experience but also opens doors to potential placements and job opportunities. Our dynamic curriculum integrates a mix of simulated workplace sessions such as role plays, quizzes, case study analysis, and research knowledge projects.
